International application No.

PCT/US07/79827

Box No. V Reasoned statement under Rule 43bis.1(a)(i) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Statement

Novelty (N)	Claims	2-5	YES
	Claims	1, 6, 7	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims	None	YES
	Claims	1-7	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1-7	YES
	Claims	None	NO

2. Citations and explanations:

Claims 1, 6 and 7 lack novelty under PCT Article 33(2) as being anticipated by Aquilino et al. Aquilino et al. discloses [Cl. 1] a method comprising receiving a plurality of bets, in which each bet defines a respective amount wagered, a respective area, and a respective weather-related event (paras. 0013 and 0078-0096); displaying data that represents the plurality of bets (BETTRANS; paras. 0090 and 0096); determining an outcome of a weather-related event (para. 0097); and determine at least one winner based on the bets and the outcome (para. 0097); [Cl. 6] an apparatus programmed to perform the method of claim 1 (para. 0116); and [Cl. 7] a computer readable medium that includes a program operable to direct a computer to perform the method of claim 1 (para. 0116).

Claim 2 lacks an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Aquilino et al. in view of Rowe et al. Aquilino et al. disclose the method of claim 1 which display data that represents the plurality of bets, but lacks the teaching of displaying the data in a graphical display representing a map.

Rowe et al., however, teaches a method of wagering (co. 10, lines 49) and teach of displaying data in a graphical display representing a map (col. 20, lines 16-20).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to display the plurality of bets of Aquilino et al. in a graphical display representing a map as taught by Rowe et al. in order to increase visual interest in the game.

Claim 3 lacks an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Aquilino et al. in view of Paravia et al.

Aquilino et al. disclose the method of claim 1 comprising receiving data indicating a bet of the plurality of bets, but lacks the teaching of receiving data indicating a residence.

Paravia et al., however, teaches a method of wagering (abstract) comprising receiving data indicating a bet of the plurality of bets (abstract); receiving data indicating a residence (col. 8, lines 9-13); and verifying that a residence corresponds to the area defined by the indicated bet (col. 8, lines 13-15) and further teach that the residence data is used to ensure that the player is not violating any laws or regulations.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include in the method of Aquilino et al. the step of receiving data indicating a residence as taught by Paravia et al. in order to ensure that the player is not violating any laws or regulations.

Claims 4 and 5 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Aquilino et al. in view of Ginsberg et al.

Aquilino et al. disclose the method of claim 1, but lacks the teaching of generating an offer to purchase an additional bet.

Ginsberg et al., however, teaches a method comprising receiving a plurality of bets, in which each bet defines a respective amount wagered and a respective weather-related event (abstract) [Cl. 4] further comprising generating an offer to purchase an additional bet (updated displayed list of events; para. 0034); and further [Cl. 5] in which generating an offer to purchase a bet comprises generating the offer based on a bet of the received plurality of bets (the system updates the client's credit in response to the wagers placed and updates the displayed list of events based on the updated credit; para. 0034).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include in the method of Aquilino et al. the steps of generating an offer to purchase a bet as taught by Ginsberg et al. since this would encourage the client to bet more.

Claims 1-7 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4), and thus have industrial applicability because the subject matter claimed can be made or used in industry.
